Attendance Again Breaks Record at School Wednesday

Rada Sue Garrett Fills Main Floor of Saenger on Third Day

LECTURES ON MEAT

Star's Cooking School Sessions Begin Promptly at 1:30

For the third consecutive day Miss Rada Sue Garrett broke all attendance records Wednesday at the Saenger theater where she is staging The Star's free annual Cooking School.

The main floor of the big theater was nearly full at 2:30 o'clock Wednesday, with a slightly larger crowd than on Tuesday at the same hour, and considerably larger than on Monday. Each day has beaten attendance figures for parallel days in the Cooking Schools staged by The Star in 1929 and 1930.

Total attendance for this year's School, which closes Friday afternoon, will run from 25 to 30 per cent more than either of the preceding Schools, and it is drawing in housewives from 25 and 30 miles out in the Hope trade territory.

Admission is free. Each session begins exactly at 1:30 o'clock, and runs for two hours. The regular Saenger matinee performance follows as soon as the theater has been cleared, not later than 4 o'clock.

Miss Garrett lectured Wednesday on meats and other recipes, following her usual plan of demonstrating actual methods of food preparation in the model kitchen on the stage of the Saenger.

Business Women Entertain Tuesday

Public Health Program Features Club Dinner at Hotel Barlow

Mrs. Brooks Ellison, chairman of the public health committee of the Hope Business & Professional Women's club was hostess to the regular meeting of that organization Tuesday night at Hotel Barlow.

The dining tables, arranged to from a T, were lovely in their decorations of sweet pans and rose in pastel shades and ferns, in silver holders, the large basket at the head of the table being flanked with tall cathedral candles in silver sticks. Each place was marked with "April showers" place cards and dainty programs the frontispieces of which was a microscope.

Mrs. Ellison introduced Miss Evelyn Lewis who was toastmaster for the occasion. Special guests were Dr. Don Smith, Dr. L. M. Lile, Scoutmaster Henry Haynes, and Scouts Lane Taylor and Rufus Herndon. Pr. Little Misses Mary Ann Lile, Mary Cornelius Holloway, Patsy Ann Campbell, Marilynn McRae, Margaret Simms, Anna Ayres and Phana Fullor, pupils of Miss Pauline Harris, were seated at a special table, and later gave several dance numbers, individually and in groups, which were greatly enjoyed.

Other guests included, Mrs. B. F. Ellington, of Atlanta, Texas; Miss Rada Sue Garrett, who is conducting the Hope Star's annual Cooking School at the Saenger theater; Miss Anna Norton of the Southern Ice & Utilities Co., and Miss Wyble Wimberly. A large percentage of the club membership was present and added to the interest of the occasion.

A number of special songs were sung with Miss Volland Reed at the piano, and were dedicated to one of the members, Mrs. Margaret Simms McDonald, who is receiving the active support of her home club and of many clubs throughout the state for the presidency of the state federation.

Mrs. McDonald was one of the speakers of the evening, emphasizing the coming state convention of Business and Professional Women's Clubs at El Dorado, April 24 and 25. She gave a report of her activities as state publicity chairman and said that Arkansas had an excellent chance to win the national trophy which will be given at the National Convention at Richmond, Va., in July.

Dr. Don Smith gave an address on the subject, "Nutrition Is a More Important Factor Toward Contentment Than Fat Pay Check." He stated that history is replete with periods of unrest, which frequently have led to revolutions, accompanying unemployment and lack of food. "Fat pocket books ordinarily assure us of plenty of food and consequent nutrition," he said, "but unless we know the value of different types of food, we may find ourselves poorly nourished, even though our tables are well laden." He gave an outline of proper food elements, paying especial attention to vitamins and their importance in the diet.

Scoutmaster Haynes told of first aid methods which are taught to Boy Scouts. Scout Taylor and Cornelius (Continued on Page Eight)

Bishop Winchester Offers Resignation at State Convention

Throat Infection Given as Reason in Asking for Release

A BISHOP 20 YEARS Graduate of Washington and Lee University Many Years Ago

LITTLE ROCK—(AP)—Right Reverend James R. Winchester, Wednesday offered his resignation as Bishop of Arkansas to the house of bishops in the Protestant Episcopal Church, subject to the action of the Diocesan convention which opened sessions here Wednesday.

Bishop Winchester gave as the reason for his resignation a throat infection that has hindered him in his active administration.

He recently celebrated his 79th birthday.

A Bishop 20 Years

He was ordained to priesthood 53 years ago and has been bishop nearly 20 years, succeeding Bishop J. M. Brown here.

He is a graduate of Washington and Lee University and one of the three men now living of a group that served as a guard of honor at the funeral of General Robert E. Lee, who was head of the university while Bishop Winchester was a student.

Before coming to Arkansas he had been in a number of parishes in Virginia, Tennessee and Alabama.

The Hope office for the handling of federal crop and food loans in Hempstead county will be closed the last of this week, it was announced Wednesday.

A total of 857 applications has been approved, in the total of $141,000, of which the first and in some cases the second installment has already been paid.

About 300 applications still are pending with the Memphis federal loan bureau, but they are for food loans, at a relatively smaller amount than the crop loans.

The grand total of federal loans in Hempstead county this spring is expected to reach $175,000, according to the Hempstead County Loan Board, H. M. Stephens, J. Ford Johnson and W. Homer Pigg.

The Greatest Authors

ONE of the best ways to start a fine argument is to make up a short list of the best American novels. No matter what books you select, there will always be plenty of people who disagree with you; and since there is no way of proving or disproving your correctness the argument can go on and on as long as anybody feels like arguing.

John Galsworthy, who is surely one of the greatest living novelists, recently named what he considers the four greatest American novels. He selected "Tom Sawyer" and "Huckleberry Finn," by Mark Twain; "The Scarlet Letter," by Hawthorne, and "McTeague," by Frank Norris.

Now we can sit back and wait for the various critics to fall upon him and tell him where is in error. In the meantime, Mr. Galsworthy's list is interesting on its own account.

Probably the most notable thing about it is that it overlooks the great writers of the present day. Hawthorne belongs far back in an earlier, almost forgotten, generation. The present generation usually lists him with the great unread. Mark Twain, likewise, although far from being ignored today, represents a vanished era. Only Norris comes close to the present, and even he concerned himself with the San Francisco of the nineties.

But where are the writers of today—those writers whom earnest critics exalt mightily, as if they and only they, among all Americans, had been permitted to see the true inwardness of things? Where are the great exponents of frankness, the sober weighers of tragedy, the acidulous critics of American hypocrisy and immaturity?

Where, to be specific, are Messrs. Lewis, Dreiser and Cabell? Mr. Galsworthy seems to have ignored them. Above "Babbitt" and "The Genius" and "Jungen," he places a simple tale of colonial New England, two romances of the pre-war Mississippi and a story of Polk street in San Francisco at the turn of the century.

Naturally, there is nothing final about Mr. Galsworthy's selections. There are plenty of qualified judges who are convinced that Mr. Dreiser and Mr. Lewis have more to say to us than had Mark Twain and Hawthorne. But the English novelist's list at least serves to remind us that American literature was not born after the World war.

There were able writers in the land before most of the present-day reading public were born; and it is just possible that some writers of the present generation have been praised a trifle more generously than they deserve.

Straws Pointing to Prosperity

IF AS the old saw has it, straws do indicate which way the wind is blowing, signs are not lacking that the United States is on the threshold of economic recovery.

An increasing percentage of bank reopenings as compared with failures was recorded by the Federal Reserve Board in February, along with a sharp decrease in the number of failures. Forty-five banks reopened, with seventy-eight failures reported. In the preceding month there had been fifty-four reopenings, but 277 failures.

Trading on the listed bond market in New York on April 1 was the largest for the year to date, the aggregate being $16,288,000.

In the office of M. J. Meehan & Co., one of the larger stock brokerage houses in New York, there was jubilation among the employees when they found in their pay envelopes an Easter present in the form of a 12 1/2 per cent increase in salary. This increase was in the nature of a reinstatement in salaries, which were cut during the depression, and was considered a sign of returning confidence in Wall Street. The increase is believed to be the first reinstatement in salaries in Wall Street since the return of activity in the stock market.

A recent report by the State Superintendent of Banks in New York shows that deposits in savings banks in the State increased $404,939,000 in 1930. The amount of interest credited during 1930 by New York State savings banks was $197,122,566, while the excess of deposits over withdrawals was $210,133,564.

Construction contracts awarded in the metropolitan area of New York City during the first two weeks in March this year were $12,000,000 ahead of the corresponding period of last year. They aggregated $26,404,500.

On a national scale, the weekly business index of the Analyst shows a gain for three successive weeks, the first time a favorable movement has been so sustained since the middle of last year. Increases in freight car loadings, electric power production and furniture orders are among the factors showing improvement.

The United States is not the only country in which rays of light are penetrating the economic gloom. Debates in the Reichstag over the reasons for unemployment have disclosed that Germany today is giving work to 34,000,000 persons now, as compared with 25,000,000 before the war; 57 per cent of the inhabitants are now employed in gainful occupations. Thus much progress has been made toward absorbing in employment a large number of German women who have entered business and a large number of persons who formerly lived on inherited property.

In England the second series of sales in the colonial wool auctions has been a recovery which is considered remarkable, prices running more than 5 per cent higher at the end than at the beginning of the series. France is showing her confidence by going forward energetically with preparations for the Colonial Exhibition to be held in Paris and is extending large credits to the colonies for development.

Wets Might Get Majority

The Association Against the Prohibition Amendment claims that 161 of 435 representatives favor submission of prohibition to the people and if that is true only 57 more votes would be needed for a House majority, although the wetts claim only 22 out of 96 in the Senate.

Hardly anyone really believes that the wetts will gain 50 House seats. It's a matter of conjecture, but they will do well if they get half as many. Nevertheless, any time the wetts can take a score or more seats away from the drys all at once it's going to be something for them to cheer about.

The drys, of course, think it

Agreement Made In $161,940 Suit

Settlement Follows Conference With St. Louis Bank Officials

HARRISON.—Complaint of the Citizens Bank and Trust Company of Harrison against the Grand National bank of St. Louis, Mo., for $161,940 alleged to have been wrongfully withheld, was dismissed today by the plaintiff, following an agreement between representatives of the banks.

Under the agreement, the Citizens Bank and Trust Company becomes owner of all notes involved in the litigation, in lieu of the items for which recovery was sought.

Makers of the notes involved will receive from the Grand National bank notices that payment on the notes will be made to the Citizens Bank and Trust Company, and that the Grand National bank no longer claims the notes.

The settlement was reached at conferences here Friday between A. T.
Hudspeth, head of the Citizens bank and F. G. Redwine, of St. Louis, vice president of the Grand National. The suit was based on a complaint that on November 28, 1930, the Citizens bank had on deposit in the Grand National $176,990, but that on that date the defendant bank wrongfully converted to its own use $12,612; that $31,328 in commercial paper was sold without recourse to the Grand National, and that the Harrison bank was not credited with this sum. The suit alleged that the local bank advanced to Magness Brothers of Western Grove $10,000 at the request of the Grand National, and that the latter refused payment for the note.

Under the hoofs of grazing cattle ... the destiny of the Southwest

Copyrighted, Erwin E. Smith

THE pioneer cattleman who crowded the heels of savagery was of the breed which met emergency with resourcefulness, his word and honor needing no securities. In the face of adversity he wrapped himself in his abounding fortitude and calmly awaited the opportunity to again forge ahead. Like the mesquite tree, he was the first to occupy the vacant space and, like the mesquite in a drought, which dies back from the top but whose roots are deep in the soil, auspicious showers found him ready to again thrust out green boughs and luxuriant foliage.

But a new wealth was destined to turn the resourcefulness and energy of the pioneer cattleman and farmer into more lucrative channels. In 1894 traces of crude petroleum showed in a well that was intended to bring water to the City of Corsicana, Texas. Exercising an inherent pioneer progressiveness, a group of far-sighted citizens began drilling for oil. Their vision and foresight were rewarded when, in 1896, a producing well was brought in, marking the beginning of the first important oil field in the Southwest.

Within a few brief months a movement was started to build a refinery. On Christmas Day, 1898, the first still in the Southwest was charged at Corsicana by the J. S. Cullinan Company, which, through a series of developments, became the Magnolia Petroleum Company in 1911.

Before the accidental discovery of oil at Corsicana in 1894, the vision of a Jules Verne could hardly have conjured a picture of the Southwest thirty-seven years hence. Oil, like black magic, plus the same kind of resourcefulness and fortitude possessed by the early Southwestern pioneer, has brought untold wealth and prosperity to a land that would otherwise have been cattle pastures or cotton fields.

As oil transformed the cattle range into cities and oil fields of beehive activity, the founders of the Magnolia Petroleum Company kept pace with each new need for petroleum products. As the kerosene lamp replaced the ancient and troublesome tallow candle, bringing new convenience and pleasure to the ranchman and farmer, so was a new era of smokeless, cinderless luxury introduced to the traveler when, in the early part of 1901, the first oil-burning locomotive left Corsicana over the Houston & Texas Central, burning Magnolia fuel oil.

The Magnolia Petroleum Company, as the original refining company of the Southwest, like its pioneer predecessors, has grown with its responsibilities and opportunities until today we see the pioneer, who a generation back read his letters from home by the light of Magnolia kerosene, hurtling across his range in an eight-cylinder motor car, still served by Magnolia . . .
his needs supplied better than ever before by

Socony Motor Oil and Magnolia Ethyl or Maximum-Mileage Gasoline.

The Windsor Steam Pressure Cooker
Saves $7 to $12 on Original Cost

The Windsor brings you every up-to-the-minute improvement in pressure cooker development. Heavy cast aluminum, brilliantly polished—easy to clean, made to last a life time. Perfect fitting lid with six quick-adjusting clamps, easy to operate—the superior type found only on the best cookers. Visible gauge shows pressure at all times. Complete fittings include roasting rack with removable pins, and heavy aluminum pans (two in 8-quart size, 3 in all others) one perforated for steaming. Full instructions and Book of 100 Tested Recipes.

Approved by Good Housekeeping
Institute

The U. S. Department of agriculture recommends steam pressure as the quickest, safest method for canning meats, fruits and vegetables. Now it is recognized as the ideal method for all home cooking. It not only cuts the usual cooking period to one-third and gives a corresponding saving in fuel, but actually makes foods more wholesome—preserves the essential vitamins in green vegetables, transforms the cheaper cuts of meat into delicious roasts and ragouts, and eliminates all cooking odors—it pays for itself in a

ON GREENS

There is a wealth of flavor in salads made of greens or simple vegetables. It will be lost, though, if you cover them with a thick, heavy dressing. The flavors of such salads suggests a dressing like French Dressing, Bachelor Club Dressing, or Vinaigrette Dressing.

To make Vinaigrette Dressing: Put one teaspoonful of salt, one teaspoonful of sugar, one-quarter teaspoon of pepper, a little paprika, twelve tablespoonfuls of Wesson Oil, three tablespoonfuls of vinegar into a bowl. Beat with a fork until thoroughly blended. Stir in two tablespoonfuls of chopped dill pickle, and one teaspoonful of chopped parsley.

ON FRUIT

Fruits, fresh or canned, respond happily to a dressing with a touch of sweetness . . . or one to which a little cheese or some finely chopped nuts have been added. The next time you have a fruit salad try this Cream Cheese Dressing.

To make Cream Cheese Dressing: Cream two packages of cream cheese with four tablespoonfuls of Wesson Oil. Blend one-half teaspoon of salt, one eighth teaspoon of white pepper, one and one-half teaspoonfuls granulated sugar, one-quarter teaspoon paprika, four tablespoonfuls Wesson Oil and one of lemon juice. Beat into the cheese until the dressing becomes light and fluffy. Dust with paprika.

ON SEAFOOD

The generous salads that come to the table as the main course of a meal suggest a kind of dressing different than either of those used on fruits and greens. If the salad is going to be made of meat a Worcestershire Sauce Dressing would go well. If it is made of chicken or seafood, serve it with Lemonaise. When you have a seafood salad first marinate the ingredients in French Dressing. It gives them flavor and firmness.

To marinate: Mix twelve tablespoonfuls of Wesson Oil and three tablespoonfuls of vinegar. Add a teaspoonful of salt, one-quarter teaspoon of pepper. Mix with the seafood and set aside in the refrigerator for several hours. Serve with Lemonaise (mayonnaise made with lemon juice).

Mint with lamb
cranberry with turkey
jelly with duck

JUST as we make the sauce or seasoning to fit the dish, so should the salad dressing be made to suit the salad. For salads are made of many different things . . . as different as grapefruit and chicken, fish and pineapple, ham and nuts. Serving one salad dressing on all of them would be like serving cranberry sauce on every dish that comes to our tables. So . . .

mix a dressing appropriate to the salad

If you have a salad of light greens or vegetables select a tart dressing like Bachelor Club, Vinaigrette or French Dressing. For fruit salads, try a rather sweet dressing or one to which a dash of cheese has been added. Seafood and Lemonaise seem to be meant to go together. But before the salad is made the seafood should be marinated* in French Dressing.

We would like to send you with our compliments, a little book by Mary B. Murray on appropriate salad dressings . . . a book that not only suggests what dressings go with what salads, but which offers many helpful suggestions to the hostess as to correct salad service. MAD MARRIAGE

BY ALICE T. BROWN

AUTHOR OF "HEART HUNGRY" ETC.

AMERICAN
PUBLISHING
CO. OF NEW YORK
1931
BY NEA
SERVICE

BEGIN HERE TODAY
OF THE MARRIAGE OF 18-year-old Kaw Earth, Kansas, woman with WALLACE (the day after she meets him at the home of her wealthy cousin ANN THORPE).
Wallace's Gypsy has been ill
by ANN. Gypsy has been ill from a year and a half in Paris studying art. Wallace's fiancee has broken their engagement to marry a richer man.

Jim and Gypsy go to Forest
City where Jim has a thriving law practice. His relatives and Gypsy Ann Crosby writes her but she refuses to come. Her mother, MARIA LOHING, Jim's former fiancée, marries BROCK PHILLIPS, mil-lionaire's son.

Meanwhile, Jim and Brock Phillips
have agreed to a split up.

Marie returns to Forest City.

She consults Jim about financial matters and later tells him her uncle in Phillips was a mile-long. Jim is very interested in Gypsy but sees Maria frequently.

Marie because she believes Jim has taken Maria Phillips to her. Gypsy accepts FRANK GIB-SON'S invitation to drive him from a shopping trip. There is a collision and Gypsy's ankle is sprained. Another motorist takes her home. She is attentive during the day while Jim is away. Jim comes home one evening and gives Gypsy a letter to read.

NOW GO ON WITH THIS STORY

CHAPTER XLIII

GYPY took the letter and looked at the handwriting on the envelope. The slanting script was unfamiliar. "Who's it from?" she asked.

"Read it. You'll find out," Jim answered.

There was something about his expression that puzzled Gypsy. She looked at the envelope again. It was addressed to James R. Wallace at his office. She drew out the folded sheet of note paper.

"Catherine Fowler" was the name signed at the bottom of the single sheet.

"But who?" the girl began.

"Go ahead and read it."

Gypsy read—slowly at first and then with quickening interest.

"Dear Mr. Wallace," the letter began. "I am writing this because I feel I must. You probably know that a week ago I was acquitted in my trial. My lawyer pleaded self-defense. We are told that time heals all things. It will be a long while before the horror of these past weeks can possibly leave me but I want you to know that never will I forget how kind and Mrs.
Wallace helped me and gave me courage to do the right thing at the very crisis of it all."

"I am going away for a long rest.
Bobby is well again and is going with me. When I look at my child
—I feel that he really is my child—it is with the knowledge that nothing can cloud our future happiness
I shall devote the rest of my life to raising Bobby and teaching him to be a good man."

"No one in this world will ever know what my suffering was that morning Mrs. Wallace came to see me.
I don't think I could have gone on.
Will you please tell her for me that I bless her name and that if ever there is any way in which I can repay you two I will consider it a great privilege. Very sincerely

—Catherine Fowler."

"When did you go to see her, Gypsy? What does she mean by saying you 'gave her courage to do the right thing'?"

"It wasn't really anything I did.
Jim, I couldn't tell you because I promised I wouldn't. It was the last day of the trial."

"Gypsy! Was it you who made that woman come down and confess that she shot her husband?"

The girl shook her head. "No,"

"I don't think it was. You see you were so sure Nina was going to be convicted and that she was innocent—and so was I—that I couldn't stand it. I went out to see Mrs. Fowler as a last resort.
I'm not sure just what I thought would happen but when I got there she was nearly crying because the boy was sick. So, how when I looked at her I knew she did it.
I was sure of it! All I had to do was tell her who I was and she broke down and admitted everything.
I told her to go to you and you'd tell her what to do. Isn't it wonderful she feels the way she does now? I'm so glad, Jim."

"So it was really you who won the robbery case!"

"Oh, no, Jim! Why, it wasn't at all. That's silly! She'd have confessed anyhow. I know she would.
She had the idea that the reason Bobby was sick was because she was letting someone else pay the penalty for what she'd done. She thought Bobby was going to die.
The poor woman didn't seem to know what she was saying or doing."

"Just the same, you were the one who made her confess!"

"I wish you wouldn't say that. It isn't true. She didn't because she couldn't help herself. It was her own conscience that made her tell.
Fowler must have been a terrible sort of person, don't you think so,
to threaten the life of a tiny child?"

"Now you're trying to change the subject. Of course he was Trented his wife like a brute. Well, Gypsy, I didn't realize that there were two lawyers in the family but that was a fine thing to do. I take off my hat to you!"

"I couldn't ever be a lawyer but I know one I'm proud of."

Jim sank into a chair beside her and took her hand. "Maybe we could form a partnership," he said smiling.

"Maybe we could."

Gypsy was realizing how very attracted bright blue eyes can be in a sun-brown, slightly-ruddy face above broad shoulders when Matilda entered the room.

"There's a telephone call for you,
Mr. Wallace," she announced.

"Thanks. I'll be back in a minute."

"Sit down, Matilda, and stay until he comes back," Gypsy suggested.
"Has Cora finished the troupe?"

"Yes. She left half an hour ago.
I told her you said she was to eat some of the sweet peas and take them home."

"That's right. They'll stop blooming if they're not cut. Listen, Matilda, couldn't you serve dinner up stairs here tonight? Would it be a lot of extra work? Jim can bring up a card table and you could serve the plates in the kitchen! Just put everything on a tray!"

"You mean serve dinner for you and Mr. Wallace both?"

"That's what I mean. It would be so much more fun than eating alone and as it is you have to fix the table downstairs and bring up my tray."

"Why, sure. I can do that if you want me to."

"Oh, I think it will be fun!"
Gypsy said delightedly. "Just think, for a whole week now I've been trying to get you to do something."

Cotton Unchanged During Last Week

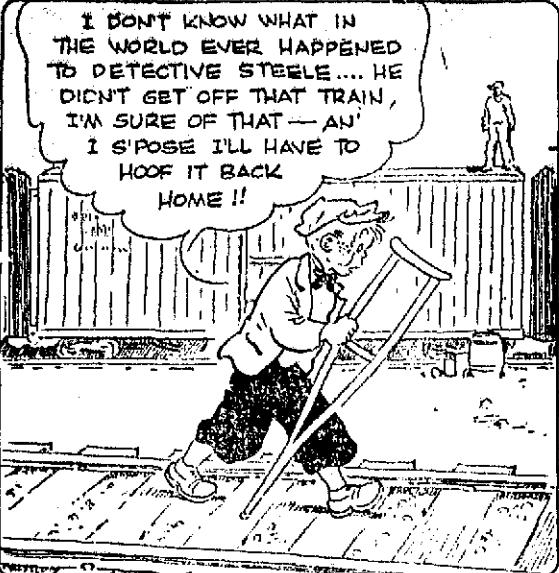

Visible Supply April 1st Is
2 1/2 Million Bales More Than in 1930

MEMPHIS—(U. S. Dept. Agriculture) Cotton prices were virtually unchanged for the week ending April 17. Demand for spot cotton both in the domestic and foreign markets was said to have continued only fair with the volume of spot transactions rather limited. According to the Weather Bureau, for the past week in the eastern cotton belt planting of cotton is under way in the coastal plains of the Carolinas and has begun in Georgia northward to Augusta and Macon. Average price of Middling 7-8 inch on the ten markets April 17th 9.48c, compared with 9.31c April 10th and 15.16c April 17th last season.

Grade differences were slightly revised during the past week with the average of the ten markets April 17th for white low middling 124 points of middling and strict low middling 50 off.

Premium staple cottons were said to be fair to good demand, for such cottons, particularly in the grades of middling and strict middling in the length of 1-1/2 to 3-1/2 in., up to and including 1-5-32 inch, with the offerings of such cottons scarce. The demand Specified "Ice Refrigeration" as the first essential for her Happy Kitchen.

Likewise, you, as a home-maker, should give the problem of your refrigeration the very first consideration. Your refrigerator belongs to your kitchen. Make that kitchen your pride and joy with a new and modern efficient Ice refrigerator.

THIS CIRCLE PROTECTS YOUR FAMILY CIRCLE

Nothing complicated about the cycle of ICE Refrigeration. Nothing simpler or more sure.

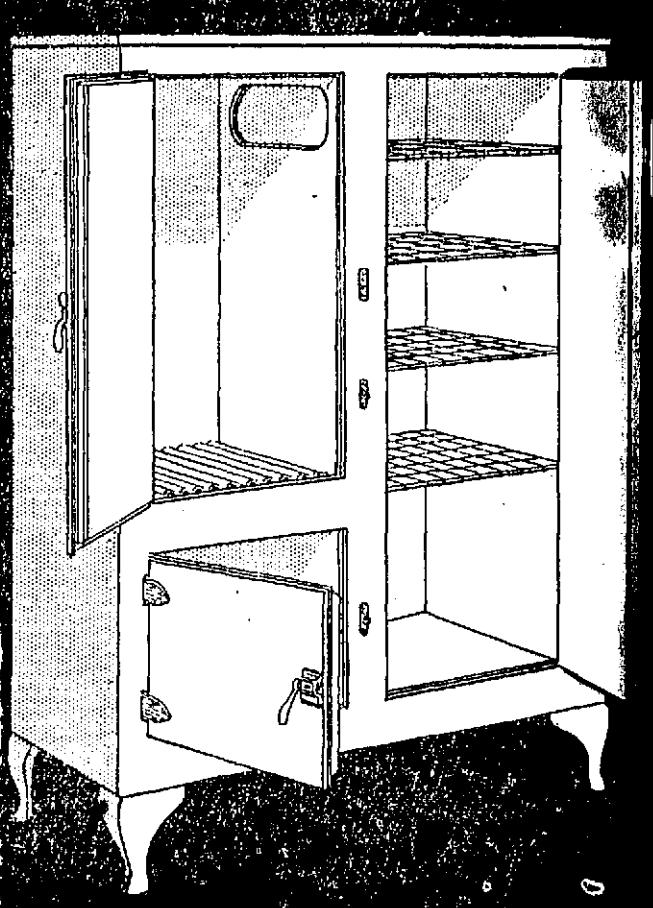

Air circulation completes the entire cycle in an ICE Refrigerator around the circle throughout the interior of a good Refrigerator, the steady flow of washed air—moist enough—dry enough—cold enough—for perfect food preservation.

Down from the ICE the chilled air falls, cooling foods by absorbing heat from them. Absorbed heat warms the air, causing it to rise, until, reaching the top, it is drawn through a wide air duct to the ICE, where it deposits collected food odors, is cooled and repeats that cycle again—silently, automatically.

Odors deposited on the ICE are dissolved on its watery surface and washed down the drain, never to return. Fastidious housekeepers appreciate this self-cleaning feature of ICE Refrigeration.
